

Resumé

In my thesis, I focus on issues related to the change of the concept of the business establishment, part of the business establishment and purchase of a business establishment in relation with the recodification of the Czech private law.

After the introduction in the first chapter, the second chapter deals with the concept of business establishment. Business establishment within the meaning of section 502 of the Civil Code is a newly conceived as an organized set of assets and liabilities created by an entrepreneur, based on his will, are used to pursue his activities. A business establishment is presumed to comprise everything that is typically used for its operation. Thus, in accordance with the propositions of the European Court of Justice was to Czech private law enshrined the concept of the intent of the entrepreneur.

The third chapter deals with the parts of the business establishment, specifically definition of the business establishment and reflection on the possibility of using jurisdiction and professional publications under the previous arrangements to similar issues.

The fourth chapter deals with the purchase of the business establishment specified in the provisions of section 2175 et seq. Civil Code. In context of the new regulation on purchase of the business establishment, I focus on the following most important facts: the effectiveness of transfer of ownership, the exclusion of certain parts of the business establishment from the agreement and the transfer of receivables and debts. In this chapter, I furthermore deal for example with the contract and its essential requirements and its form and changing and the consent necessary for ownership transfer.

In the last chapter I briefly explain the purchase of parts of the business establishment and similar use of a special provision for the purchase of the business establishment. Throughout my thesis I compare previous legislation and jurisdiction with the possibility of using existing treatment.
